5. Our legitimate purposes in using your personal data

Where we have mentioned above that the use of personal data is based on our "legitimate purpose", these are:

- serving the needs of our customers, including the delivery of our products and services;
- promoting and marketing our products and services;

- account handling (for example, an online shopping account), complaint management and resolution of any disputes;
- understanding our customers, including their patterns, behaviour, as well as their tastes and preferences;
- Protecting and supporting our business, colleagues, customers and co-owners;
- testing and developing new products and services and improving existing ones;
- legal/regulatory requirements.

6. How and why we share personal data with business partners and service providers

In this section we explain how and why we share personal data with business partners and service providers. When we share personal data with these companies, we require them to maintain security and they must not use personal data for their own marketing purposes.

Business partners We work with a number of trading partners who sell products through our services. In such situations, we only share personal data that enables our business partners to provide their services. For example, when you shop through our Service, we may share your name and contact details with our business partner so that they can deliver the products you have selected.
Service providers	We work with carefully selected service providers who perform certain functions on our behalf. These include, for example, companies that help us provide: customer services, technology services, data storage and linkage, payment processing and order delivery. We only share personal data that enables our suppliers to provide these services. Some of the service providers we work with operate online media channels within which they place relevant advertisements for our products and services, as well as for our suppliers and our business partners. For example, you may see an ad for our products and services when you use a certain social media site or watch online TV.

7. How and why we share personal data with others

We may share personal data with other organisations in the following circumstances:

- When the law or a public authority says that we must share personal data;
- where we need to share personal data in order to establish, exercise or defend our rights (including transferring personal data to others for fraud prevention and credit risk reduction);
 - to an organisation to which we sell or transfer (or enter into negotiations to sell or transfer) any of our rights or obligations under any contract we may have with you. If the transfer or sale is successful, the entity receiving your personal information may use your personal information in the same way as we do;
- to any legal successors associated with our business.

8. How we protect your personal data

We know how important it is to properly secure and manage personal data. This section outlines some of the measures we have put in place. To ensure the security of your data we use computer security measures such as:

- restricting access only to employees who need it to perform their job duties;
- we enforce physical, electronic and procedural safeguards relating to the collection, storage and disclosure of personal data;
- physical access controls to our buildings and files;
- firewalls and encryption of data during transmission using the Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) protocol.

However, although appropriate technical and organisational measures have been taken to protect personal data, we cannot guarantee the security of any personal data sent to us over the Internet.

The personal data we collect from you may be transferred to and stored at a destination outside the European Economic Area ("EEA"). It may also be processed by companies outside the EEA that work for us or for one of our service providers. If we do this, we will ensure that your privacy rights are respected in accordance with this Policy. The most common way we do this is by putting in place a specific type of contract (see here for more information on: https://ec.europa.eu/info/law/law-topic/data-protection/data-transfers-outside-eu_en) or through an approved programme such as the Privacy Shield: <https://www.privacyshield.gov/welcome>.

9. How long we process personal data

We will not keep your personal data for longer than we need to, which depends on several factors:

1. (Above all) the reason why we collected them;
2. How long ago they were collected;
3. Is there a legal/regulatory basis for us to retain them;
4. Do we need them to protect your interest or ours.

10. Choice in terms of receiving marketing communications and participating in market research

We will send you relevant offers and information about our products and services in a number of ways, including by email, but only if you have previously agreed to receive this marketing information.

When you register with our Service, we will ask you whether you wish to receive marketing communications. You will be able to change your choice of marketing preferences at any time via the settings panel within your user account, by telephone (tel. 508 170 110 or 600 488 712) or in writing (BluzUp, ul. Czerniakowska 73/79 lok.1, 00-718 Warsaw).

We would also like your feedback to help us improve our Services, so you may be contacted for market research. You will always have the choice of taking part in our market research or opting out.

11. How we use cookies

Cookies (so-called "cookies") are IT data - in particular text files - placed by our Website on the User's terminal equipment during each visit, which allows our websites to remember the User's computer or device and serves several purposes. The entity placing cookies on the Service User's terminal equipment and accessing them is the Foundation. The Service server automatically logs information sent by the User's browser when viewing the website. The server logs may include information such as the network request, IP address, browser type and language, date and time of the request. Cookies placed on a Service User's terminal equipment may also be used by third parties to offer users additional functionality. The use of these tools or widgets may result in the collection of cookies on users' devices in order to facilitate the use of these services and to ensure that user interaction is displayed correctly on our Services.

12. Your choice of cookies

Although most web browsers automatically allow cookies to be placed on your computer, you may choose not to receive cookies so that you remain anonymous. If this is the case, please note that by not consenting to the placement of cookies, the User will not be able to take full advantage of all the features of the Website. In order to configure the options of his/her device regarding the consent to the storing of cookies and to determine the scope of the cookies to be stored, the User can make changes to the settings of the Internet browser used (in most cases, this option can be found in the Tools or Preferences menu of the browser).

We would like to inform you that if you do not change your cookie settings, they will be placed on your terminal equipment. In this case, our Services may store information in the User's terminal equipment and access this information.

Information on how to manage cookies in the various browsers can be found on the pages dedicated to the individual browsers:

- Firefox: <https://support.mozilla.org/pl/kb/ciasteczka>
- IE:

13. Right of access to data

You have the right to inspect your personal data that we hold.

14. Other rights of data subjects

With regard to your personal data, you also have:

- Right of rectification

If you think we have inaccurate or missing information about you, let us know and we will correct it.

- Right to object

General objection - we will consider your objection to our use of your personal data. If your rights outweigh our interests in using your personal data, then at your request we will either restrict the processing (see section 14.3 below) or delete it (see section 14.4 below).

Objection to direct marketing - if you raise such an objection we will stop using your personal data for direct marketing purposes. As a result of an objection to direct marketing, and where we have no other legal basis for its use, the processing of your personal data will be stopped within 30 days.

- Right to restrict data processing

There are several situations where the use of personal data can be restricted, including (but not limited to):

- you have lodged a general objection (mentioned in paragraph 14.2 above);
- you question the accuracy of the personal data we hold;
- we have used your personal data unlawfully, but you do not want us to delete it.

●Right of erasure

There are a number of situations in which you can instruct us to delete your personal data, including (but not limited to):

- We no longer need to store your personal data;
- you have successfully lodged a general objection (mentioned in paragraph 14.2 above);
- you have withdrawn your consent for us to use your personal data (and we have no other reason to use it);
- we have unlawfully processed your personal data.

●Right to data portability

If you would like a copy of the personal data we hold about you, please contact us via: hello@merchup.com.

●Right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority

We would like to be able to resolve all your requests and comments, however, you also have the right to lodge a complaint directly with your local supervisory authority if you believe that we are processing personal data unlawfully.

●More information on your data protection rights

The website of the President of the Office for the Protection of Personal Data (PUODO) on data protection provides more detailed information on your data protection rights mentioned above. If you would like to talk to us in more detail about these rights, please use the section below in which we inform you "how to contact us".
